EXAMINATIONS

The process of evaluation consists of written examination for applicants with a master's degree and a written examination and oral interview for candidates with a bachelor's degree. The written exam is administered by a third-party company designated by IC&RC. Persons who are qualified and designated by the APSC Certification Commission administer the oral interview. The Certification Commission assumes full responsibility for adequate safeguards to protect the integrity of the oral testing procedures.

WRITTEN EXAMINATION

The written examination serves as an objective measure of applicants' knowledge of substance use disorders and the Domains for each level of certification (see Appendix I).

The APSC Certification Commission uses the IC&RC written examination for Alcohol and Drug Counselor and Advanced Alcohol and Drug Counselor. No other examinations are accepted.

The candidate will receive an automatically generated email with instructions on how to choose examination date, time, and location for your examination.

A counselor may take an examination up to three times in a calendar year. The IC&RC requires a 90-day waiting period before retesting. A non-refundable fee is required for each time an examination is taken.

The results of written examinations will be sent by the testing authority in writing to the applicant.

ORAL INTERVIEW

(BACHELOR'S CANDIDATES ONLY)

The oral interview measures the ability to apply knowledge and demonstrate competency in the Domains. Scheduled quarterly, oral interview dates and locations will be listed on the APSC website.

Candidates who have successfully completed all of the other requirements by the required deadline may request to sit for the next oral interview by notifying the APSC office.

Oral interview fee is non-refundable.

Candidates will present their philosophy of treatment and their case study during their oral interview. All oral interviews are recorded.

The Certification Commission will give the results of the oral interview in writing to the applicant within 21 business days after completion of the oral interview. No results will be given via telephone or by personal email.

Candidates who do not pass the oral interview may reapply and pay additional fees to retake the oral interview. Oral interviews may be taken no more than three times within a calendar year. Candidates who disagree with the Certification Commission results may appeal this decision. There is an appeals fee. The candidate may view and/or hear the recording of their oral interview with their supervisor at the APSC Office.

Renewal of certification is required every two years. The following procedure governs the recertification process that is completed online.

RECERTIFICATION APPLICATION

It is always the responsibility of the applicant to maintain certification, which includes personal and professional address changes and/or name changes.

Applicants are encouraged to submit the recertification application with recertification fee to the APSC Certification Commission 30 days prior to expiration date of certification to avoid lapse in certification. Applicants must pay a late fee if their applications are received after expiration of their certification. (See Appendix V for the Late Application Fee that must accompany a late application.) If the applicant allows their certification to expire, the applicant will be required to submit an updated certification application with appropriate fees (See Appendix V for fee schedule.)

APPENDIX II

Guidelines for Clinical Supervision

Supervision is an intervention that is provided by a senior member of a profession to a junior member of that same profession. This relationship is evaluative, extends over time, and has the simultaneous purposes of enhancing the professional function of junior members, monitoring the quality of professional services offered to the patients, and is a gatekeeper of those who are to enter the particular profession.

Clinical Supervision can be defined as an arena in which counselors acquire knowledge and skills for the substance abuse treatment profession due to consistent contact between a supervisor and an in-process counselor. Clinical Supervision aids the in-process counselor in taking classroom knowledge and using it in a real-world setting. The supervisor provides the in-process counselor with oversight and guidance in diagnosing, treating, and dealing with all clients, as well as evaluates the in-process counselor's clinical performance.

Clinical Supervision sessions are based on the in-person information from the in-process counselor that is made available to the supervisor through such means as one-on-one discussion, written clinical material, direct observation, co-therapy, audio and video recordings, and live supervision. In-person information can come from individual, group, couple, or family therapy sessions.

Clinical Supervision is not to be confused with one's own personal therapy. Clinical Supervision is to aid the in-process counselor in their professional development. Goals should be agreed upon by the supervisor and in-process counselor. The goal should be related to increasing counseling skills and judgment. The supervisor shall ensure that the in-process counselor is made aware of and understands the ethics of the National Association of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Counselors.

The results of written examinations will be sent by the testing authority in writing to the applicant.

The following will need to be in place prior to starting clinical supervision for an APSC certification

1 The supervisor and supervisee shall outline together the process of supervision. Some issues that should be addressed include, but are not limited to, the following:

Clarification of where, when, and for what length of time supervision will occur.

The availability of the supervisor in therapeutic emergencies.

Confidentiality issues and record keeping.

Knowledge of, and commitment to abide by, the code of ethics and applicable federal and state laws.

An actual or composite case may be submitted. The case record must include a description of a full range of care for the client, from intake through termination, including session-by-session notes of individual, group or family counseling. These notes should include information on the client's progress and the actions taken by you as the primary counselor to facilitate the client's movement toward identified treatment goals. Services may be provided in an inpatient or an outpatient setting and should be of sufficient duration to allow you, as the primary counselor, to demonstrate that you can take the client through a spectrum of services. You may use any forms as long as all essential components are included in the case record. Do not submit drug testing orders. Information contained in written notes is sufficient. If a photocopy of an actual client file is used, please blank out all names, except your own, to protect client and staff privacy. In all cases, the content must be legible. Illegible records or those with client names will be returned.

3 Treatment Process

Direct Services- The case record should include documentation of all direct services provided to the client, with sample session notes. These notes should include information about the client's progress and the actions taken by you as the primary counselor.

Indirect Services - The case record should also include a sample case consultation related to serving the client.

4 Transition Planning & Continuing Care

Pre-Discharge Planning - Session notes or case consultation(s) should document the criteria used to determine the client's readiness for discharge, as well as your work with the client in the discharge planning process.
